

17th November 2020

Bella Twiss Savage's blog

Last week was exhausting. Everyone was so hectic and there was so much work to do. First, we did spelling. It was actually quite fun. We did a word search and I managed to complete it. After that, we had maths and we learnt about fractions. Different types like improper fractions, proper fractions and mixed number fractions. I did ok but it was a bit tricky. Then it was break time. I always play football with my friend Bluebelle. I'm mostly a defender but I sometimes go on front pitch. After break we did guided reading and we were introduced to our new topic. Space. Then we finished reading our class book: Ever-dark. At lunch we had to stay in most of it because everyone was shouting and being silly. Eventually we went out and I played football again. Suddenly a ball came flying at me and I got hit in the head by the ball. Not good.

Mikayla Ferguson-Madden's blog

Last week was so hectic! I had to do home learning and when I got back to school I found out that one of my home-learning pieces was something they haven't even done so I knew all of the answers and got it finished. I helped my friends if they got stuck. We finished before break so we did some quite reading before break and went out. On Friday, we had to do a Friday quiz. It was so hard because it was most of the stuff I didn't know (because I wasn't here) but I still managed to get 6/7 on the quiz. I didn't win because my teacher always picks the highest score as the winner.